5 James Lott

James Lott is listed at only 5-10, and 174 pounds, but he has more career tackles than any other active Tiger. And, most of them are hits the opponents remember for a long time. Annabelle Vaughan takes a look at Clemson's 'little big-hitter'.

Today's Game

Clemson-Furman Rivalry 93 Years Old

Furman is Clemson's oldest rival on the gridiron, a series that dates back to October 28, 1896 when the two teams met in Greenville. The Tigers won that first game in its history by a 14-6 count. South Carolina, Clemson's chief rival today, would not challenge the Tigers for two more weeks. Wofford was the third team on the schedule in that inaugural season (a 16-0 Clemson win).

Clemson and Furman have been playing football ever since, and they have done so with a high level of proficiency of late. A check of some statistics recently released by the NCAA confirms this hypothesis.

In the decade of the eighties, Clemson has a 77-23-4 record for a .760 winning percentage. This is the eighth best winning percentage on the Division I-A level for this time period. Furman, just 30 miles to the north, has the second best winning percentage in the nation on the Division I-AA level for the same time frame. The Paladins have a record of 83-23-4 for a .773 winning percentage.

Over the past three seasons Clemson has a 28-6-2 ledger for a .806 winning percentage, the sixth best mark in the nation for that time frame. Additionally, Clemson owns three ACC titles and holds the distinction of being the only Division I-A team in the nation to win a bowl game, rank in the final AP Top 20 and win a conference title each of the last three seasons.

Furman has been in the NCAA I-AA playoffs for five of the last seven years and the Paladins have finished in the Top 20 for each of the last six seasons.

The highlight of each program's history took place in the eighties. Clemson won the 1981 National Championship with a 22-15 victory over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl. Furman had its year in the sun in 1988 by winning four playoff games on the way to the I-AA National Championship.

Clemson Outlook

The Clemson-Furman game marks the beginning of a new era in Clemson football. No, there haven't been many changes in the coaching staff, but the player personnel is drastically different from the group of seniors who led Clemson to 34 wins the last four seasons. Clemson fans have been buying this program for its editorial content the last couple of years. This year that centerspread roster will get a workout.

Clemson has lost 37 lettermen off of the 1988 team that finished 10-2 and ranked ninth in the nation. That is the most lettermen lost in one season in Clemson history, in fact no team had ever lost as many as 30 in one year. Danny Ford must also replace 13 starters and 18 four-year lettermen. That is also a record for four-year lettermen lost from one class and is the third most starters lost in one season.

Gone are the 1988 team leaders in passing, receiving, punt returns, passes broken up and interceptions. Additionally, four starting offensive linemen must be replaced and all of those players were starters for teams that won the ACC rushing title three years in succession.

Despite these losses, many of the preseason prognosticators think Clemson will still have a good year. In fact, College & Pro Football Weekly ranks Clemson fifth in the nation. The ACC Sportswriters Association picks Clemson to win the ACC. No ACC team has won four ACC football titles in succession.

Offensively, the prime vacancy is at the quarterback position. Rodney Williams had been Clemson's quarterback since World War II, or at least that was the impression Clemson's opponents had. DeChane Cameron, Michael Carr and Chris Morocco have been battling for the number-one slot all spring and fall. Each brings something special to the position: Morocco has experience; Cameron strength and consistency; Carr athletic facility.

Terry Allen is the leader of the offense and the entire team for that matter. The rising junior has over 2,000 yards as a tailback in two seasons and could become Clemson's all-time leading ground gainer by midseason. Wesley McFadden is the best all-around back on the team in that he has starting experience as a tailback and fullback.

Gary Cooper is the top deep threat on the team. The native of Ambridge, PA is the top returning receiver and he has averaged over 20 yards a catch in his career, an all-time Clemson record for receivers with at least 50 catches.

Arlington Nunn is one of the 1988 Clemson reserves who must come on strong in 1989.

Defensively, Clemson returns seven starters from a unit that ranked in the top 15 in the nation in scoring, rushing and total defense. Clemson is most experienced at the linebacker position, but will need some newcomers to come through in the defensive line and for backup strength in the secondary.

Ed McDaniel paced Clemson in tackles last year with a freshman record 104 stops. He was the second freshman in Clemson history to lead the team in tackles. Doug Brewster is also a returning starter at inside linebacker. The native of Athens, GA used his quickness to register 89 stops last year, but will always be remembered for his 68-yard interception return for a TD at Georgia Tech.

Vance Hammond is the leader of the down linemen and hopes to continue off his career high 11-tackle performance against Oklahoma in the Florida Citrus Bowl. Otis Moore is a senior tackle who has started at least one game each of the last three years.

The secondary is led by James Lott, the senior player with more career games played, starts, tackles, passes broken up and punt return yards than any other current Clemson player. Dexter Davis also had a landmark 1988 season with a freshman record 10 passes broken up, including one in the endzone on the last play of the victory over Oklahoma. Arlington Nunn and Jerome Henderson are two more reserve defensive backs in 1988 who must move to the forefront as starters in 1989.

Furman Scouting Report

This was supposed to be Furman's year. But, Jimmy Satterfield made a mistake in his approximation of his team's 1988 chances and he turned in some work ahead of schedule. The result was a 13-2 record and the National Championship.

Now with 15 starters and 49 lettermen returning from the 1988 season, he faces the pressure of trying to repeat with a team that will be favored to repeat. "As a team we face a tremendous challenge this season in staying hungry," says Satterfield, who has been at Furman as an assistant or head coach since 1973. "Recently, teams that have won national championships haven't fared well the following season, and that's what we want to avoid."

Furman was awesome defensively last year, ranking first in the country (I-AA) in scoring defense, allowing just 9.5 points per game. The Paladins also ranked second in rushing defense and fourth in total defense.

Senior cornerback Pat Turner will be a leader on defense. He paced Furman in interceptions (four), pass deflections (17) and punt returns. Rush end Kelly Fletcher earned All-Southern Conference honors in 1988 and was a GTE Academic All-American. He totalled a school record 15.5 quarterback sacks and was the major reason Furman had 49 sacks last year.

Offensively, Satterfield must replace Southern Conference Blocking Trophy recipient Kennet

Goldsmith, a bullish fullback who was a prime reason Furman averaged 262 rushing yards per game.

Returning to run the offense will be Frankie DeBusk, a fine all-around QB who wears number-22, an unusual number for a quarterback. The 6-2, junior moved into the starting lineup four games into 1988 and led Furman to nine straight wins, including the Southern Conference and the National Championships. DeBusk netted 1928 yards in total offense as a sophomore, including 1562 yards passing.

Like Clemson, Furman has experience at tailback, as three players with multiple letters return. Dwight Sterling was the second-team tailback last year, but the leading rusher with 868 yards and 11 touchdowns. He has been known to go both ways, as the 6-1, 215-pounder was employed as a passer rusher at times last year and even recorded a sack. Bobby Daugherty gained 807 yards and scored seven TDs last year as the starting tailback.

Greg Key is the starting end and might be considered the best all-around lineman. As a second-team player last year, he is the leading returning receiver off 18-247 statistics. Junior center Steve Duggan was in for 910 plays as a sophomore and is a major reason for Furman's strong ground game. He was a first-team all-conference player as a sophomore. David Adams, a senior guard, had a winning grade in all 15 of Furman's games in 1988 and has the strength to bench press 450 pounds. Eric Walters, Furman's freshman of the year in 1988, is also a standout guard.

by Annabelle Vaughan

Looks can often be deceiving.

In the case of James Lott, so can words and actions.

But perhaps his looks are the most deceiving thing about him. At 5-10, 174 pounds, he is the smallest safety on the Clemson team in terms of weight. When the defense huddles during a game, number five gets lost between the defensive tackles and nose guards and linebackers. But when that huddle breaks, he makes his presence felt in a big way, because, despite his almost-diminutive size, he is also one of the strongest players on the squad.

Lott's pound-for-pound strength rating, or power ratio, of 7.21 is one of the top-10 marks among active players. To have a power ratio of over 7.0 is quite an accomplishment, according to Head Strength Coach Gary Wade, and Lott well exceeds that mark. In fact, his strength rating is best for a Tiger defensive back since the strength training staff started computing power ratios in 1985.

These strength figures have little meaning on paper, but Lott shows their real worth when the ball is snapped. He has earned a reputation for being one of the hardest hitters on the Clemson team, despite also being one of the smallest. He received the Goody's Hit-of-the-Game award for three games last season, against Georgia Tech, N.C. State, and Maryland.

In fact, the most memorable play of Lott's Clemson career may be another powerful hit. Against Georgia in 1987, Lott combined with fellow defensive back Gene Beasley to nab Bulldog quarterback James Jackson in the end-zone for a safety. That tackle was one of five Lott made that day, and brought the Tigers to within two points of their archrivals. In fact, heading into the 1989 season, Lott has almost 30 more career tackles than any other returning Tiger, 155 to be exact.

Hitting is the aspect of the game that Lott most enjoys. "Playing in the secondary is one of the toughest positions on the field," says Lott. "You have to study just like you are in school so you will be able to recognize whatever comes at you and respond to it. The difference is that if you do what you are supposed to do, sometimes you get the reward of being able to make the tackle. That's the most fun part of the game."

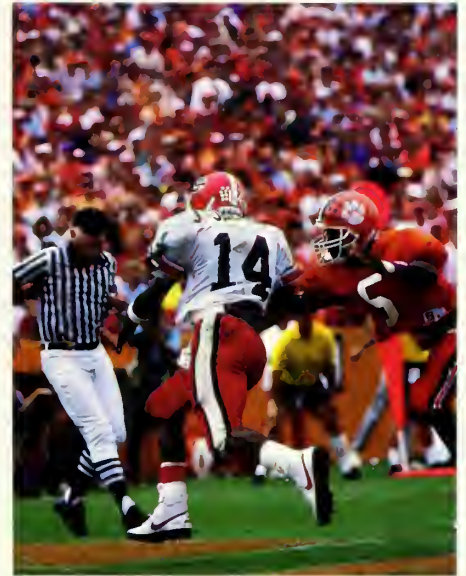

It is this hard hitting that most impresses Lott's position coach, Bill Oliver. "The thing that really fascinates me, and something that I lose sight of sometimes is that for his size, James Lott is a ferocious hitter. I want to make a highlight film of him someday because he does some really fantastic things."

Hitting hard is an art that Lott perfected over the second half of last season after a move from cornerback, where he had spent his first two years as a Tiger, to free safety. In his first game at free safety against Virginia, he tallied nine tackles, the second best tackle total up to that point in his career. Over the next seven games, Lott had 40 stops, including a career high of 10 against Wake Forest and seven against Maryland, South Carolina and Oklahoma. Whatever he lacks in size, Lott has definitely made up for with the hard and numerous hits he has put on Clemson opponents.

But Lott's looks are not the only deceiving thing about him. His words are also deceiving. When he lines up against an opponent, he talks nonstop, usually on such inane topics as his plans after the game or how the opposing players look. But don't let that fool you either, because Lott usually knows exactly what is going on. In fact, it is Lott's football intelligence and ability to make quick reads that helped the Clemson coaches arrive at the decision to move him to his new position.

"In 1988 we wanted to have the best possible chemistry we could in the defensive secondary," said Oliver. "We felt that moving James to the safety position allowed us to do a lot more things with him and use his talents more. He is a great centerfielder, a sure tackler and a great communicator with our calls. He is like a quarterback back there also because of the verbal calls he makes. But if the opponents were to get out of a conventional offense, he allows us to have a cornerback at free safety. It is a real luxury to have those things rolled into one player."

Lott did not put in much scrimmage time at either position this last spring. Although he had 28 tackles, two tackles-for-loss, one pass broken up and an interception during spring scrimmages, he spent most of his time on the sideline to allow younger players to get more experience. To an unknowing observer, Lott's lack of playing time might have meant a lack of ability. In fact, in one particularly long scrimmage, Lott had so little to do that he mixed up a huge batch of juice, poured it into cups, and served it with a flourish to the defensive players as they came off the field.

Lott's most famous play to date took place in 1987 when he was the first to get to James Jackson of Georgia. It led to a safety in Clemson's 21-20 win.

"That was something I did just to be cute," he says. "I got bored just sitting down and not playing, so I took the guys drinks and said stuff like 'I know you must be tired and since I was sitting over here doing nothing I thought it might be nice if I brought you some juice.' That just added a little humor to the afternoon. It made the guys laugh, and besides, they were thirsty!"

But it was not lack of ability that left Lott with time on his hands during the spring. "We already know what James can do and we are pleased with that," continues Oliver. "We wanted to look at the younger guys and give them every possible chance to get where James has gotten."

Although James Lott may keep his teammates well-supplied with laughter, his function on the 1989 team is much more than team-comedian. "James is a little hyper" says Oliver, "and he has to be doing something at all times. But when it comes to football, I think our players really look up to him as a leader. I know that during the off-season conditioning program, whenever some of the guys wanted to leave early and not finish a workout, James would just tell them they couldn't and they would have to stay in the weight room and finish. They didn't have any choice. He would make them stay in there."

When it comes to his leadership role, Lott doesn't fool around. "I don't think that the whole team thinks of me as a leader," Lott says, "but on the field, I think they look to me for encouragement and for me to make the first move. Most people don't like to be in the driver's seat; they like to sit in the back. I like to drive and I like to drive fast! I may talk and act crazy sometimes, but don't let that fool you. When it comes to playing football, I'm one of the most serious guys on the team."

Lott ranks in the Top 10 in Clemson history in PBUs and punt returns.

Where's the beach?

In Clemson's Death Valley, you have to climb to the top row of the upper deck to see a beach and then the only beaches visible are Y-Beach, East Bank Beach or maybe on a clear day 12-Mile Beach. There is not much of a swell in the waves around the beaches that surround the shadows of Death Valley. The largest waves occur when a 30-foot pontoon boat passes by the shoreline. Where are the big waves, the mammoth surfer waves?

With one look around the Clemson football team, it is obvious that most of the players don't wear surfer shorts and few resemble your typical "beach bum." Although his usual attire may not appear to be that of a surfer, senior linebacker Vince Taylor is one Clemson football player who can always give you directions to the nearest beach.

When Taylor is not chasing down opposing running backs in Death Valley, he can usually be found at the beach, ones with the big waves, outside of Clearwater, Florida. He doesn't just go there to relax, however; he's a surfer and a pretty good one at that.

Don't get the wrong picture. Taylor is not the stereotypical surfer that Hollywood has portrayed in the movies.

"Just because I'm from Florida and I like to surf, I'm not going to wear beads, I'm not going to say "dude" to everyone, wear high top sneakers and my surfing shorts everyday, I'm just going to be me," said Taylor.

Indeed the senior linebacker is at ease with himself. It shows in his smile, in his style and in his speech. The Clemson linebacker started hanging out at the beach during his junior high years and practiced surfing at some inopportune times.

"I basically started out surfing because I grew up about five minutes from the beach and a lot of the guys I hung around with were surfers," he said. "I always wanted to try it out, but I thought it would look really funny with a big guy on a surfboard. So I used to try it out late at night during high tide and I learned how to surf. My brother and I would go out whenever there was a tropical storm. We would sneak out of the house and try to catch the big waves. If my mother would have ever found out, she would have killed us at the time.

"I just get excited, thinking about being on a wave. It's just you and that wave and you have to take it. It's just like hitting an offensive guard. It is you and him and he is either going to beat you or you are going to beat him. Just like the wave. You are going to make it to the whitewater or the wave is going to eat you."

At 5-11, 228 pounds, Taylor needs great strength to take on those guards as well as the mammoth waves. Fortunately, he is not only the strongest linebacker on the team, but one of the strongest players overall. He is second on the squad in the bench press with a 455-pound mark, using Clemson's strict technique. No bouncing of the bar is allowed; it must be controlled.

He has a power rating of 6.91, the fifth best mark on the team and the best since 1985 for a Clemson linebacker. Although these numbers don't mean that much to most fans, Clemson head strength coach Gary Wade can help put it in perspective.

"It simply means Vince is the fifth strongest player pound-for-pound on the team," said Wade. "For a linebacker to be ranked that high is phenomenal. Usually you will have a smaller player, ranked high. For a guy who weighs 228, like Vince to have a power rating of 6.91 is quite an accomplishment."

Taylor attributes his work habits in the strength training room to his high school days. "I was fortunate enough to have a great strength training coach in high school and play with some great athletes," said Taylor. "I used to feel good about throwing up 225 and now I am working out regularly with 400 pounds."

As a Tiger linebacker, Taylor has started 18 games throughout his career and Clemson has posted a 13-3-2 record in the games he has started. Although he lost his starting position to teammate Ed McDaniel after the loss to Florida State last season, Taylor finished the year with 30 tackles, including 15 first hits.

Taylor has had an excellent spring and fall and has been running with the first-team offense often this fall. He undoubtedly will see more action this year in the inside linebacker rotation.

"The platform is all laid out for this upcoming football season," said Taylor. "I just need to go out and do it. I need to go out and do what I know I am capable of doing and what I should have done a couple of years ago. I need to improve myself this last year to be the player that Clemson recruited.

"Weight training, football and surfing, they all start with getting excited, concentrating and balancing your time and then going out and doing it."

Whether he is catching a wave during a tropical storm or chasing down opposing tailbacks in Death Valley, you can be assured that Vince Taylor will be trying to give you 100 percent. Then after the game, he can tell you how to get to the beach.

In addition to catching waves, senior linebacker Vince Taylor enjoys catching opposing tailbacks.

When Max Lennon came to Clemson more than three years ago, he brought with him some definite ideas about what was needed in order for Clemson to reach its potential: more emphasis on research and the graduate program (the university's greatest potential for growth and immediate economic impact); increased private support for academics; more effort in frontier areas of research to aid South Carolina's traditional industries; a more global perspective in both academic programs and research; and a significant state investment in higher education.

Those were the ideas; now for the reality:

- more than a 60 percent increase in research funding in a single year
- the most successful private fund-raising year ever, with more than a 40 percent increase over last year's record-breaking total
- a landmark experiment in the field of biotechnology, plus research that is breaking new ground in advanced apparel manufacturing, composites, robotics and many other areas
- the addition of international academic programs and research partnerships involving Clemson with institutions in Japan, France, Germany, Italy, Egypt, China, Israel and Great Britain, among others
- a $5-million higher education initiative called the Cutting Edge

But the Lennon agenda is far from completed. The Clemson president sees more challenges, more opportunities, ahead. At a recent address to the faculty, he said, "We must continue to look for new ways to fulfill Clemson's land-grant mission: aggressively recruiting students into areas that are exclusive to Clemson — agriculture, forestry and textiles — and that have more job opportunities than graduates, increasing minority representation in the faculty and administration as well as the student body, and making Clemson more accessible.

"As a land grant college, we have an obligation in rural development and to help eliminate the pockets of poverty and illiteracy that remain in this state. Education is the answer, and we have an obligation to make education accessible to all people."

Lennon sees Clemson as still in the process of maturing into a major, comprehensive university with a regional and national reputation in its primary mission areas — science and technology. He has worked hard to bring together the necessary support system by involving not only faculty and staff but also legislators, business leaders and alumni in determining Clemson's future. And the future looks pretty bright. "Clemson is a very exciting place to be right now," he says.

Lennon came to Clemson from Ohio State University, where he had been executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. Lennon was also on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and was co-chairman of the Governor's commission on agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture, and as director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, N.C., and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N.C. State University. He began his teaching career at N.C. State.

The Clemson president has been active in a number of civic and professional groups, ranging from his local PTA and the South Carolina Research Authority to the National Dropout Prevention Fund and the International Development Institute.

In the fall of 1987, Lennon was named to the board of trustees of the Farm Foundation, a national organization devoted to improving research and education to benefit rural areas. He will serve a four-year term as the university representative on the board, which also includes farmers, legislators and executives of leading agricultural industries.

Lennon was appointed in 1988 to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Policy Advisory Committee for Science and Education Research Grants Program by Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, and was a keynote speaker at the AgBiotech '88 international conference in Washington.

This year Lennon also was appointed to chair a committee of top administrators and federal officials from 11 universities across the nation to work with congress on legislation relating to foreign assistance and international development. The committee is a project of the National Association of State Universities and land-grant colleges.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon and they have two children, Daniel Ray (27) and Robin (24).

Dr. Max Lennon made outstanding contributions at N.C. State, Texas Tech, Missouri and Ohio State before becoming Clemson's president in 1986.

Bobby Robinson

The Clemson athletic program has been on the rise in just about all forms of athletics in recent years. Bobby Robinson is the leader of the department as its athletic director and his commitment to success in competition, academics and facilities has been the key to this level of distinction.

An examination of the chart on this page shows that Clemson has made a steady rise in the national men's all-sports poll since he took over for the 1985-86 academic year. Last year Clemson finished sixth in the USA Today All-Sports poll, its highest ranking in six years and the second straight year Clemson has finished in the top 10 in the nation. The number of Clemson All-ACC performers and All-Americans also reached all-time highs.

Both major revenue sports had banner years with the football team winning a third straight bowl and finishing in the top 10 in the nation. Danny Ford's gridders also won a third straight ACC title. The men's basketball team went to its second NCAA tournament in the last three years, and it marked the first time in Clemson history the Tigers took part in a January 1 Bowl game and the NCAA basketball tournament.

The baseball team also advanced to the NCAA regional finals, meaning Clemson was one of just three teams in the nation to win a bowl game, an NCAA tournament basketball game and an NCAA baseball tournament game. A total of nine teams, highlighted by a number-three finish for the Clemson golf team, finished in the top 20 of their respective polls. This is a total topped only by the 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, two other years in the Robinson era.

In academics, Clemson student-athletes had another outstanding year. Seventy-five young men and women had 3.0 or better grade-point averages each semester, with seven earning a perfect 4.0 GPA. The football team had three players named to the academic All-ACC team, and two students were named to Academic All-America teams. Over 30 former Tiger student-athletes received college degrees in the past 12 months.

The commitment to success in academics is further confirmed by the decision to build an academic learning center for student-athletes. Encompassing over Bobby Robinson is in his fifth full academic year as Clemson Athletic Director.

29,000 square feet, the center will feature classrooms, learning labs, and an auditorium, as well as office space for the academic advising staff, which now has four full-time staff members. It should be completed at a cost of $2.5 million by the fall of 1990.

In the area of facilities, Robinson has a record of success and accomplishments second to none. Recent capital improvements include the indoor tennis facility and the soccer stadium, with the learning center and completion of the baseball stadium coming soon. Major renovations recently completed include the golf practice area, cross country trail, stadium locker rooms, wrestling practice room, football coaches meeting rooms and renovation of the football athletic dorm. A complete maintenance and irrigation system has also been implemented for all practice fields.

Renovations recently concluded include the new IPTAY/ticket complex at Gate 9 at the football stadium, a nine-lane all-weather track, Jervay Center offices and gymnasium. Without a doubt, Clemson athletic facilities are among the finest in the country.

Administratively, Robinson has instituted policies and procedures that benefit all constituents. Among the changes are the drug testing program, the Student Athlete Assistance Program (SAAP), a staff Policies and Procedures Manual, computerization of the department, the pro agents seminar, as well as the athletic academic scholarship endowment.

From a university prospective, Robinson envisions the athletic department as being one of 49 campus departments, serving a viable role to the mission of Clemson University. "Athletic competition provides a common bond for students, faculty, staff, and friends," according to Robinson.

Under the direction of Robinson, the athletic department continues to support the university. Over $1 million have been contributed to the athletic academic scholarship fund; and band travel equipment and uniforms are funded by athletic dollars. An educational enhancement fund has been coordinated through the efforts of the athletic department and the Athletic Council.

With Robinson's qualifications, it is easy to see why the Clemson athletic program enjoys continued success — he has done it all. He has been an administrator at all levels, he has worked in other areas of the university. Robinson has been a head coach and he has handled the budgetary aspects needed to run a $12 million program.

Robinson graduated from Furman with a B.S. degree in business and political science in 1968. He was the president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity chapter at Furman.

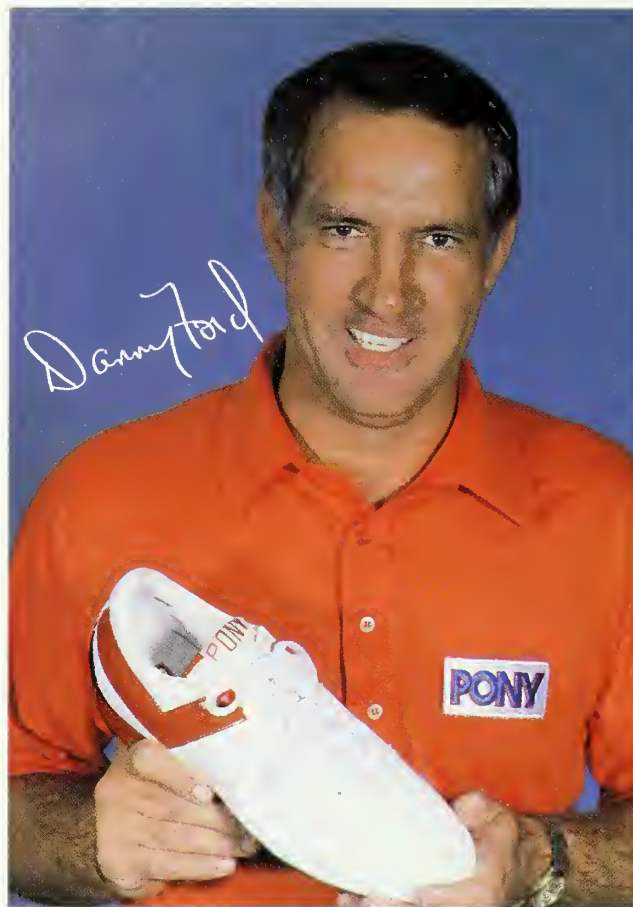

Robinson came to Clemson in 1970, not in athletics, but in the housing office. After three years, he moved across campus to serve as an administrative assistant in the athletic department.

After serving the athletic department in various capacities, he became business manager in 1975. Two years later he was named assistant athletic director, and in 1980 he became associate AD. He held that title for five years, and his area of responsibility moved to primarily football and basketball. The native of Columbia became Athletic Director in March of 1985.

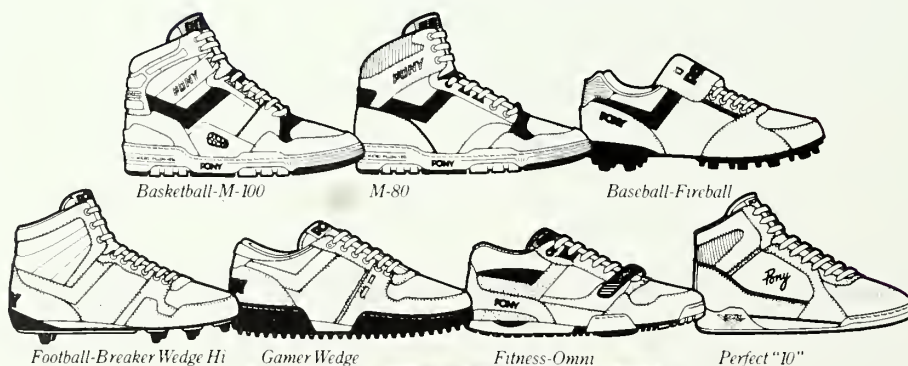

While serving his administrative duties, Robinson found time to coach the Clemson golf team between 1975 and 1983. During his time as the head coach, Clemson won its first ACC title in golf and three times the Tigers participated in the NCAA tournament. In 1983, his final season as the head coach, he guided Clemson to a number-five finish. Robinson is a member of the NCAA golf committee and is a member of the CFA Board of Directors.

The list of winningest active coaches in college football contains only the very best from the world of coaching. Last year, a new name appeared in the top five of that elite list. Clemson's Danny Ford has moved into fourth place on the list of winningest active coaches in the college ranks on a percentage basis.

Not only has Ford become one of the top coaches in the nation, but on the way to this accomplishment, he has defeated each of the top three as listed at the conclusion of the 1988 season. In only 10 full seasons, Ford has posted wins over Nebraska's Tom Osborne, Penn State's Joe Paterno, and former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, the fourth winningest coach in the history of college football. The wins over Paterno and Switzer came after two of the winningest seasons in Clemson history, as the Tigers went 10-2 in 1987 and 1988. The win over Osborne's Nebraska team came on the heels of the only 12-0 season and national championship in the history of Clemson football.

Last year's Citrus Bowl victory over Oklahoma marked Ford's seventh bowl trip in only 10 full years as head coach and his fifth bowl victory in those seven trips. All 10 years as head coach, his teams have had winning regular season records. Clemson has won 80 percent of its games over the last three years and has been in the top 20 for 34 straight polls. Ford has already tied former Clemson coach Frank Howard for the ACC record for sole championships with five and for most top 20 seasons by a Clemson coach with six.

Ford's winning tradition did not begin when he became a head coach, it has followed through his entire affiliation with the game of football. Overall, he has been involved with 21 winning regular seasons in his 22 years of football, and his teams have won over 75 percent of the time.

His success as a head coach is not only evident in his win-loss record, but also in a long list of accomplishments Ford has compiled in his first 10 years as a head coach. This list would be impressive with anyone's name on it, but considering the fact that Ford is only 41, it is phenomenal. His most significant accomplishment, winning the 1981 National Championship, was attained when he was only 33-years-old, making him the youngest coach in the history of the college game to win the Associated Press National Championship.

Not only has Ford moved into fourth place on the list of winningest active coaches, but he has recently reached another milestone. He is now the winningest coach in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference on a percentage basis. He is already second in total wins among ACC coaches and needs just 13 wins to break Clemson Hall of Famer Frank Howard's record. These wins have not been easy ones, instead they have come against fierce competition. Ford has already gained more wins over AP top 20 and top 10 teams than any other coach in Clemson history and is the only coach in conference history to have a winning record (15-11-1) versus top 20 teams (top 20 when playing Clemson, minimum 10 games played).

Ford has established a new era in football at Clemson University, creating one of the most solid programs in the nation. Now in his 11th full season with the Tigers, his record stood at 86-27-4 (.752) entering the season. Not only is Ford among the winningest active coaches, but Clemson also has the second best winning percentage in the South during this time period. Clemson is the only team in the nation to win a bowl game, a conference championship and finish in the top 20 of the AP poll each of the last three years. Clemson has the sixth best record (28-6-2) in the nation during this time period.

After examining Ford's football past, it is difficult to imagine him anything but a winner. Ford played tight end and offensive tackle for Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama between 1967 and 1969. Ford started all three years, was all-conference in 1969 and played on all three teams that went to bowl games. In 1969 he was a member of the All-SEC academic team, and served as captain of the Alabama squad. Ford also played freshman basketball at Alabama.

Ford earned a B.S. degree in industrial arts and a Master's Degree in special education from Alabama, working as a graduate assistant coach for Bryant and then as a full-time assistant in 1972 and 1973. From 1974 to 1976 he served as an assistant coach at Virginia Tech and joined the Clemson coaching staff in 1977 as an offensive line coach. He was named assistant head coach prior to the 1978 season. At the end of that season at the age of 30, Ford was named the Tigers' head coach, making him the youngest active Division I coach in the country.

Clemson's head coach has had five bowl wins, five ACC titles and six Top 20 seasons.

Danny Lee Ford was born on April 2, 1948 in Gadsden, AL and married Deborah Anderson of Attalla, AL on January 23, 1970. The couple has four children: Jennifer Renee (3/15/73); Ashleigh Lynn (8/13/75); Mary Elizabeth (4/24/81); and Daniel Lee (10/17/85).

He began coaching on the collegiate level at East Tennessee State (1973-77), then moved on to Wichita State (1978) and Tulsa (1979). He also spent three years at Mississippi (1980-82) before taking a position at Duke, where he spent two years (1983-84). McCorvey joined the Clemson staff on July 13, 1983 from Alabama A&M, where he spent four seasons (1979-82) as offensive coordinator. Oliver came to Clemson from the USFL's Memphis Showboats, where he spent two years (1983-85) and served as senior defensive coordinator and secondary coach. He began his collegiate coaching career as the defensive secondary coach at Auburn (1966-71) and then spent nine years at his alma mater, Alabama, working under the late Paul "Bear" Bryant (1971-80). From 1980-83 he served as head coach at UT-Chattanooga before moving on to the professional ranks. Oliver was a member of the 1961 undefeated National Championship Alabama team, and he received his bachelor's degree in biology from Alabama in 1962. In each of his first two seasons at Clemson, the Tigers led the ACC in pass completion defense and fewest yards per attempt allowed. Seven of Clemson's top 10 single season individual rushing performances have taken place under Reedy and Clemson has ranked in the top 15 in the nation in rushing five of the last six years. Additionally, he has coached nine Clemson players who have gone on to the NFL: Cliff Austin (New Orleans Saints), Stacey Driver (Cleveland Browns), Terrence Flagler (San Francisco 49ers), Kenny Flowers (Atlanta Falcons), Steve Griffin (Atlanta Falcons), Kevin Mack (Cleveland Browns), Jeff McCall (L.A. Raiders), Chuck McSwain (Dallas Cowboys), Marvin Sims (Baltimore Colts); additionally, Lester Brown played eight years in Canada, and Tracy Johnson was drafted by Houston in 1989.

Stockstill came to Clemson from the University of Central Florida, where he spent four years as assistant head coach and wide receiver coach (1985-89). Stockstill's responsibilities at Clemson include coaching the Tiger quarterbacks and acting as the football dorm director. Previous to his stay at Central Florida, Stockstill spent two seasons as offensive coordinator and quarterback coach at Bethune-Cookman (1983-84). The Sidney, OH native earned three letters in football from Florida State University, where he quarterbacked the Seminoles to consecutive Orange Bowl appearances after the 1979 and 1980 seasons. Stockstill was also a 1980 and 1981 All-Southern Independent and All-Metro Conference performer for FSU. He received his bachelor's degree in physical education from Florida State in 1982.

LARRY VAN DER HEYDEN Offensive Line

Van der Heyden coached the defensive line at his alma mater, Iowa State, from 1965 to 1967, and served as a graduate assistant coach there in 1964. He is a member of the all-time Iowa State team selected by former players and coaches. He earned three letters in both football and baseball from Iowa State and received a bachelor's degree in physical education (1962) and a master's degree in education (1968) from the same institution. He has coached three All-America guards over the last six years at Clemson and for a five-year period (1983-87), one of his guards was chosen All-ACC.

TOMMY WEST Outside Linebackers & Bandits

WEST is in his eighth season coaching the Clemson outside linebackers and bandit ends. His recruiting territory includes Florida and Georgia, and he also follows junior college athletes across the country. Prior to his arrival at Clemson, West coached at Appalachian State for two seasons and spent a year as an assistant coach at Mississippi (1979). West earned three letters in football and baseball at Tennessee (1973-75) and was drafted by the Tampa Bay Bucs in 1976 as a linebacker. He earned a B.S. degree in health education from Tennessee in 1975. West has coached two all-conference bandit ends, including Super Bowl Champion Andy Headen of the NY Giants.

Clemson Coaches

Clemson's 1988-89 sports program was ranked in the top 10 in the nation for the second consecutive year and the seventh time in the last 11 years as the Tiger program compiled 61 points in the USA Today national sports poll released last July. Clemson's football team had a lot to do with that figure with its number-nine final AP ranking, but eight other sports at Clemson also ranked in the top 20 last season.

Clemson was one of just eight teams in the nation to play in a bowl game, the NCAA basketball tournament and the NCAA baseball tournament for the 1988-89 academic year and was one of only three schools to gain at least one win in each postseason event. Clemson tied the ACC record for overall conference championships last year with seven. The Clemson football, baseball, men's outdoor track, men's Indoor Track, men's cross country, men's tennis and women's swimming teams all won ACC titles. The Tigers boasted 65 first-team All-ACC players last year, a new school record, and tied the Clemson record for All-Americans with 26. Clemson also had nine top 20 teams last year, one off the school record of 10.

ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors went to Bob Pollock (men's cross country, men's indoor track, men's outdoor track), Wayne Coffman (women's indoor track), Chuck Kriese (men's tennis), and Bob Boettner (women's swimming).

Clemson Memorial Stadium

Just before Jess Neely left for Rice University, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need."

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing — there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron moved on to be a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the building of the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete was being poured. The story claims the tobacco is still there.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid the sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks' pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through."

"After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled — the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to approximately 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his

P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later, the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

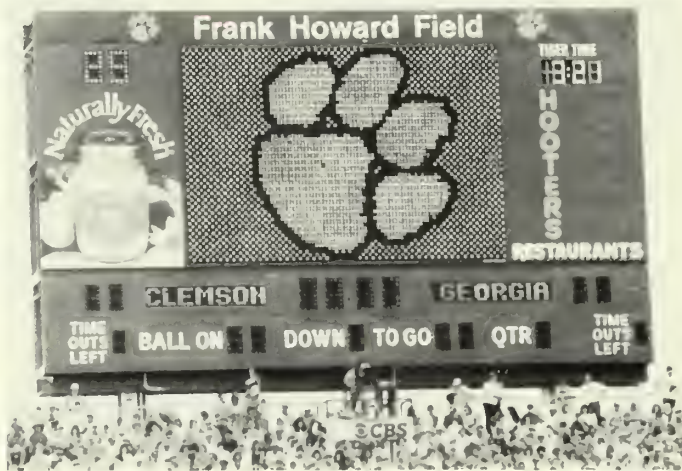

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features which make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house."

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. A unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

Rick Brewer, an official in the University athletic ticket office says that despite the stadium's large size, there are still season ticket problems. "When the second upper deck was built, we thought it would take care of everything," he said. "To our dismay, it hasn't. We've filled the upper decks and have moved season ticket holders into the end zone, which are not permanent seats."

Despite the apparent ticket crunch, Robinson says there are no immediate plans to further expand the stadium. "Before we expand we'll have to show over an extended length of time — like five to seven years — that we can sell out what we have now," he said. "We don't want supply to greatly exceed demand. Even though it's hard to get tickets now, we still get people in our stadium. The ticket means more if it's harder to get."

But, if Memorial Stadium is expanded again and capacity is pushed close to 100,000, there will be room for the construction over the west stands, enclosing that end like a horseshoe.

Clemson Memorial Stadium has over 100 luxury boxes, more than any other on-campus facility in the nation. Clemson's message board keeps fans up to date with other scores and stats, and also projects player's pictures after an outstanding play.

When Otis Moore leaves Clemson, he will be remembered in many ways. He already ranks in a tie for 15th in Clemson history in quarterback sacks, so his name will always be found in the Tiger record books. He will also be remembered for being a member of a defensive unit that ranked among the nation's best in several defensive categories during his career. And this season, as one of the few seniors on the Clemson team and the only one on the Tiger defensive front, Moore will have many more opportunities to make a permanent mark at Clemson.

But when the reticent 6-3, 276-pound defensive tackle graduates next May, he wants to be remembered in a way that has very little to do with football. He wants to be remembered the way another man of few words, Tom Harper, once described him. "I want to be known as a person who always did a lot, but said little," says Moore. "That's what Coach Harper used to say he wanted to be remembered and he said I was like that." Harper, who had served as the Tigers' assistant head coach and defensive line coach from 1981-1988, died of a heart attack in May, a loss which deeply saddened the Clemson athletic family.

"Coach Harper taught me so much during my first four years at Clemson," Moore continues. "He taught me how to overcome adversity. He taught me to be a leader in my own quiet way. He taught me how to encourage others instead of discouraging them. After he died, Mrs. Harper told me that he and I were alike in some ways."

Moore came to Clemson as a 235-pound outside linebacker, but after gaining a considerable amount of weight, the coaching staff decided to red-shirt him for the 1985 season and move him to the defensive line. "I really got down on myself," Moore remembers. "I was really discouraged about not playing my first year. When the rest of the team would travel, I would go home and everyone would look at me like I had failed. I also had no idea how to play down-lineman.

"But Coach Harper accepted me and taught me how to use my hands and how to be a good defensive lineman. Michael Dean (Perry), Jake (Richard McCullough), and Raymond (Chavous) talked to me and said that moving to defensive line would be the best thing for me. I never thought I would do well at this position but with their help, I'm a better defensive tackle than I ever thought I would be."

Moore's fellow defensive linemen were obviously correct. He started five games during his red-shirt freshman season and has started at least one game in each of the past two seasons. He also has more career snaps than any other defensive down lineman on the 1989 squad. His 13 career tackles for loss rank second among active players and with 7.5 career sacks he needs only two to place in the top 10 among all-time Clemson players. Entering the 1989 season, Moore is slated as a starter and is ready to accomplish even more.

"Coach Harper and those three guys taught me to learn to accept things and not to get down about things I can't do anything about," says Moore. "I learned from them that if I make a mistake, I just have to get right back up and go out and do it right the next time."

Learning how to accept his own mistakes has prepared Moore for the role of leadership that his seniority will grant him in 1989. "My individual goal for this season is to be a good leader," he says. "But I just want to be a leader in my own quiet way. I don't really have to say anything to the younger guys. Hopefully, if I am doing my job, they can watch me and learn. I also want to be an example off the field. I'm not the kind of guy that goes out looking for trouble. I'm more the type of guy to break up a fight, not start one."

Moore feels that as a senior, his role is more that of an encourager than a leader. "Coach Harper never yelled at his players," he says. "If you made a mistake, he would just tell you about it and then would encourage you not to make that mistake the next time. I think I got that from him. I don't say much on the field or in the huddle, but if people have messed up on the play before, I tell them not to get down on themselves. Sometimes when the team is doing a conditioning run, I tell the younger guys that I know that they are tired, but that since I have been here for five years, my body should be more tired than theirs. I try to get them to run faster and not to let an old man like me beat them."

Moore's habit of saying a little and doing a lot has also made its mark on the players who once influenced him. Richard McCullough, a fourth-round draft pick of the Denver Broncos in the 1989 NFL draft, knows that Moore's attitude and abilities are something special. "Otis has learned a lot since he first moved down to the line," McCullough said from the Broncos training camp in Greeley, CO. "He has shown that he isn't only big and strong, but he is a very good all-around athlete. You don't always notice what Otis does because he does it so consistently and because he never talks about it, but when you play with him you sure do learn to appreciate it.

"Otis doesn't say much — he doesn't talk just to be talking. But when he does talk, you know something important is going to come out. We always stopped to listen when Otis had something to say. Even the guys who were a couple of years older than him would listen to Otis."

Otis Moore will definitely be remembered as a person who said a little. Although he readily praises his teammates and the coach that meant so much to him, convincing Moore to talk about himself is a chore. But with emphasis that is uncommon to his soft-spoken manner, Moore says that he wants to dedicate the 1989 season to his mother and father. "They have always tried their best to help their kids get through the tough times," Moore says. "They have also helped encourage me when times have been tough and I want them to know that I appreciate them."

Even though the 1989 season may be a rebuilding one for the Tiger line, Moore is looking forward to it with the same expectancy he has had each of his seasons at Clemson. "I know that the best I can play is going to come this season," he says. "We won't have as much depth this year as we have had before and I know that I will have to play harder and play more. But I just look at that as a chance to see how much ability I have. I don't want to be a hot shot. I would rather be the hard worker who gets the job done. That's just the way Coach Harper taught me."

Moore has learned the ropes from some outstanding linemen, including Michael Dean Perry.

We're Team Players.

Wherever Chem-Nuclear does business, our first priority is the safe management of low-level radioactive waste. But we also take pride in being good corporate citizens—home team players.

In Barnwell, S.C., our current southeastern location, we make a real contribution. We provide scholarships and equipment and support special programs in the county schools. We support state-wide programs for exceptional students. And youth recreation is as important to us as our donations to the arts.

We helped fund a drug testing program for the sheriff's office, and set aside land for a fire station. We bought camera equipment for the police department, and put new lights on their patrol cars.

We are coaches, tutors, and volunteer firemen. We're active with organizations from the United Way to the National Guard, from churches and environmental groups to the Chamber of Commerce.

We're proud of our community and our contributions. While our first responsibility is to protect our neighbors and the environment by safely disposing of low-level radioactive waste, we take to heart our obligation to help build a strong, prosperous community—to be good citizens.

In Barnwell, when people talk about the home team, they're talking about us.

Allen Among Nation's Top Running Backs

Terry Allen is only a junior, but the Clemson tailback from Commerce, GA is 10th among active players nationally in terms of rushing yardage. Allen has 2007 career yards (not counting bowl games) in his first two seasons, the 10th highest total among active players. He is third among players who will be juniors this year as he trails only Darren Lewis of Texas A&M (2360) and Emmitt Smith of Florida (2329). Allen's 5.41 career average is also fifth among active players with at least 1500 yards.

The "Commerce Comet" needs just 750 yards this season to become Clemson's career rushing leader. As a junior, and at a school that has produced 13 running backs who have gone on to pro football in the decade of the eighties, that is quite a statement. Allen enters the Furman game with a streak of five straight games in which he has scored a touchdown, and has never been held under 50 yards rushing in his 23-game career.

In 1988, Allen was second in the ACC in rushing. He finished first in 1987 as a freshman, just the second freshman in ACC history to lead the league in rushing. He should have won the title last year, but North Carolina's Kennard Martin rushed for 291 yards in the last game of the season to beat Allen by seven yards. The most impressive stat about Allen, however, concerns his ability to hang on to the ball. Despite being a marked man in 1988, he went 199 regular season rushing attempts without a fumble.

ACC Fares Well in Bowl Competition

The Atlantic Coast Conference has the highest winning percentage among conferences with 10 or more bowl appearances in the decade of the 80's and is the only conference that has won over 60 percent of its bowl appearances this decade. ACC teams have been to 20 bowls since 1980 and have compiled a 13-7 record for a .650 winning percentage. The PAC-10 follows with a .596 winning percentage and an 18-12-1 record, followed by the Southeastern Conference, which has more bowl appearances than any other conference this decade with 50. The SEC has a .550 winning percentage and a 26-21-3 record.

The ACC has batted 1.000 in bowl competition over the last two seasons, with a 4-0 record in 1987 and 1988 appearances. The next highest winning percentage over the past two seasons is again the PAC-10, with a 5-2 record and a .714 percentage. Clemson and its 5-1 bowl record in the eighties certainly helps the ACC average.

Rushing Key to Both Team's Success

Both Clemson and Furman rank in the top 10 in the country in winning percentage in their respective divisions and they both owe their success to proficiency in rushing offense. As you can see by the following grid, Clemson is ninth among Division I-A teams in the decade of the eighties in rushing with an average of 239.6 yards per game. Furman is second among IAA teams with an average of 269.3 yards per game. The Paladins are also third in overall total offense and third in scoring in the decade of the eighties among Division 1-AA clubs.

On the conference level, Clemson has won the ACC team rushing title each of the last three years, including a 277.6 average last year that ranked ninth in the nation. Five of the last six years Clemson has finished in the top 15 in the nation in rushing. Furman has won the Southern Conference rushing title six times in the decade of the eighties.

Coaching Matchup

Two of the finest coaches in the college game will match wits when Clemson meets Furman. Both have taken their respective teams to national championships and have been named National Coach of the Year.

Danny Ford is the fourth winningest active coach on the Division I-A level. His 86-27-4 overall record computes to a .752 winning percentage. Even though he is just 41-years-old, Ford has already won five ACC championships to tie Frank Howard's long-standing record for outright ACC titles. The former Alabama player also has coached Clemson to six top 20 seasons, won five bowl games and coached 24 All-Americans and 60 All-ACC players. Ford was named National Coach of the Year in 1981 by UPI and Kodak, the year he led Clemson to the national championship.

Furman Coach Jimmy Satterfield has been the head mentor at Furman just three seasons, but he already has had 23 All-Southern Conference performers and four All-Americans. He has a .736 winning percentage off a 27-9-2 record. He was named 1988 National 1-AA Coach of the Year by Football News, Kodak and Chevrolet.

Allen is one of only 10 active players with over 2,000 rushing yards.

*Denotes red-shirted one year.

by Sam Blackman

Chris Morocco has learned many lessons since his arrival at Clemson.

Aside from earning his administrative management degree this past summer, there have been lessons about patience.

For the past three years, Morocco has served as a backup quarterback to Rodney Williams, the winningest starting quarterback in ACC history. For someone who enjoyed an illustrious athletic career in high school and dreamed about a successful college tenure, being in the reserve role at Clemson taught Chris about patience.

"It has been tough adjusting to the backup role after seeing so much action in high school," said Morocco. "However, I have been taught that adversity can make or break someone and at times makes someone stronger. You can learn from disappointment."

Although Chris has not seen much action as a starting quarterback at Clemson, he definitely knows that the backup quarterback is one of the most important positions in collegiate football in the way today's game is played.

A backup quarterback could be compared to the ace reliever in the bullpen. He must be ready to perform the role of a stopper or the closer when his team is trying to preserve or take a lead when the first string player is out with an injury.

"In the backup role, you have to be ready to play when the situation arises. You can't get too hyped up because you can be in for a real let-down when you don't get into the game. I have to keep things on an even keel."

Coming out of spring practice, Morocco is considered a favorite in gaining the starting nod this fall. In the first two preseason scrimmages, Morocco had completed 17 of 27 passes for 171 yards.

"The last two weeks of spring practice, Chris came on strong and looked good," said Clemson quarterback coach Rick Stockstill. "This fall, I think he is up to the challenge. He has a great attitude and during the preseason practice, you can tell he worked hard over the summer. He is mentally and physically ready for the fall," continued Stockstill.

Needless to say, Chris is excited about the 1989 season — the opportunities for the team and the possibility of a starting role.

"This is my fifth year at Clemson, and I am looking forward to this fall from a team standpoint and from an individual perspective. Other players have been successful in their fifth years, and I hope I can follow in that tradition.

"A person in my situation has to learn to be patient and wait their turn. To be a successful quarterback you have to win and get the job done. If you can't, there are others waiting to play. Rodney Williams was a durable quarterback, who never gave up. Rodney and I are good friends. Competition never got in the way of our friendship."

Morocco is a native of Athens, GA, an unlikely hometown for a Clemson football player. His father, Zippy, was also an all-star at the University of Georgia in basketball and football in the 1950's. So why did Chris attend Clemson?

"I wanted a school away from home, but at the same time I wanted a school close to home. Clemson's winning tradition and fine academics were also a deciding factor. Clemson has so much to offer a student. For me, it gave me the opportunity to get a great education and I have met so many friends.

"My father had the biggest influence on me while growing up. At one time I was playing five sports — golf, tennis, football, basketball and baseball. I learned early that I needed to narrow my activities to one sport and I chose football."

Morocco will begin another degree this fall in financial management and plans to enter the business world after leaving Clemson.

Although a reserve for most of his football career at Clemson, Morocco has gained experience and learned valuable lessons that will help make him a "starter" in the world of business and in the game of life.

Morocco had an outstanding game in the win over Furman last year when he rushed for 52 yards on just five carries.

1988-89 Sports Review

Clemson's 1988-89 sports program was ranked in the top 10 in the nation for the second consecutive year and the seventh time in the last 11 years when the Tiger program compiled 61 points in the USA Today national sports poll released last July. Clemson's football team had a lot to do with that figure with its number-nine final AP ranking, but eight other sports at Clemson ranked in the top 20 last season.

Clemson was one of just eight teams in the nation to play in a bowl game, the NCAA basketball tournament and the NCAA baseball tournament, testimony to Clemson's all-around sports program. Clemson, Notre Dame, Michigan, Arkansas, Florida, Florida State, Illinois and LSU were the only teams to be involved in those aforementioned postseason events. Clemson, Notre Dame and Michigan were the only schools to gain at least one win in each postseason event.

Clemson tied the ACC record for overall conference championships last year with seven. The Clemson football, baseball, men's outdoor track, men's indoor track, men's cross country, men's tennis and women's swimming teams all won ACC titles. This is the second time in the last three years that Clemson has had seven ACC championship teams. North Carolina also did it in 1987-88 and 1980-81, while Maryland did it in 1964-65.

Clemson's athletic teams of 1988-89 tied the school record for All-Americans and broke the mark for most first-team All-ACC performers in a year. Clemson had 65 first-team All-ACC players last year, shattering the record of 61 set in 1986-87. This year's group tied the record for All-Americans with 26. Clemson also had 26 All-Americans in the 1981-82 academic year. As far as top 20 teams are concerned, Clemson had nine last year, one off the school record of 10 set in 1986-87 and 1987-88.

Among the individuals who stood out in 1988-89 were Donnell Woolford, Mitzi Kremer, Dov Kremer and Brian Barnes. Woolford concluded his senior year as a consensus All-American and was a first-round draft pick by the Bears.

Mitzi Kremer was a two-time National Champion in swimming and was the MVP of the ACC. She received world wide recognition when she finished with a bronze medal in the 100 meters in the Summer Olympics. Dov Kremer became just the second Clemson track performer to be an All-American in cross country, indoor track and outdoor track, while Brian Barnes was the top lefthanded pitcher in the nation in 1989. The consensus All-American finished his career as the number-three strikeout man in the history of college baseball.

HE TRADED YARN FOR HIDES, FURS, HAMS AND CAROLINA PRODUCE WHICH IN TURN WAS SOLD IN THE COMPANY STORE LOCATED ACROSS THE STREET. DURING THE CIVIL WAR THE MILL PRODUCED CLOTH FOR THE CONFEDERATE GOVERNMENT AND ONLY ONE DAY A WEEK PRODUCED CLOTH TO SELL THEMSELVES. Emergency Services

By Christine Kelly
Genetech, Inc.

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake and physical exertion. Our two more frequent serious medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS: Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice. Seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK: The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.

2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.
3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea and/or shortness of breath.

Expect a Denial

Frequently heart attack victims deny they're having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "it's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

GREAT TEAMS BEGIN WITH THEIR LINEMEN

Like the game of football, the success of any team depends greatly on its unsung heroes, the many people who pull together as one to get the job done.

At SCE&G, the name of our game is customer service. And our success depends on this same kind of teamwork.

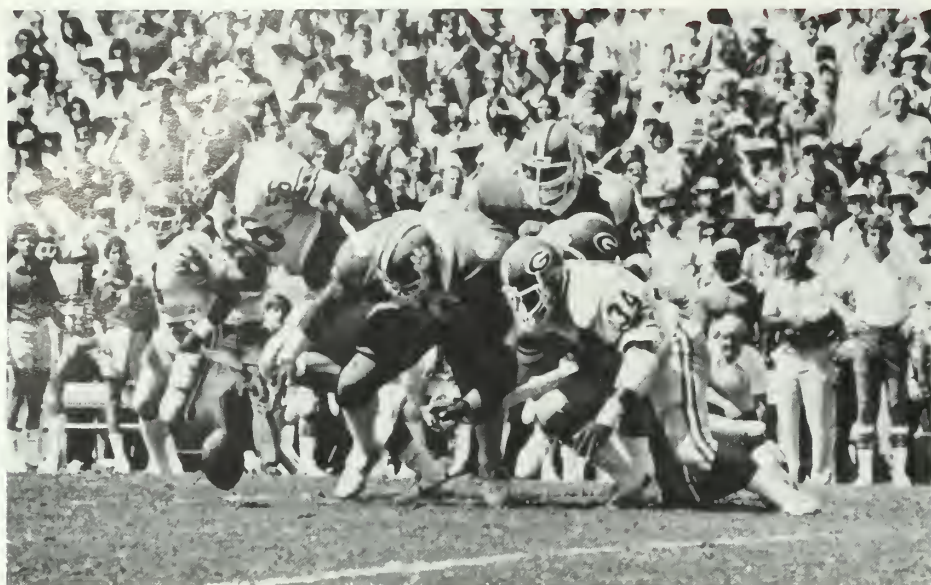

Our team has a lot of unsung heroes. They're our linemen, gasmen, meter readers, engineers, and power plant operators. They're also the inspectors, computer experts, accountants and customer service representatives who work to serve you. In fact, they're everyone you depend on to be knowledgeable and safety conscious, to respond quickly and to give you the kind of quality service you've come to expect from the people at SCE&G.

Landmark Victories

William Perry helped stop Herschel Walker in 1981 on the way to Clemson's 1981 national title. It was Georgia's only regular season loss in the Walker era.

Jesse Hatcher batted down this pass on the way to Clemson's 1989 Florida Citrus Bowl win over Oklahoma.

Over the last 10 years Clemson has defeated four of the seven (Penn State, Notre Dame, Georgia and Oklahoma) programs that have won the National Championship in the Decade of the Eighties. The Tigers have not met Brigham Young or Miami ... and the seventh team to win the title this decade is Clemson.

Dan Benish (#71) and William Devane (#92) celebrate a tackle for loss on Nebraska's Roger Craig in the 1982 Orange Bowl. Clemson gained victory by a 22-15 count to register its national championship. Clemson beat three Top 10 teams that year and had five players chosen first or second-team All-American.

Homer Jordan was the offensive MVP in Clemson's national championship clinching win over Nebraska.

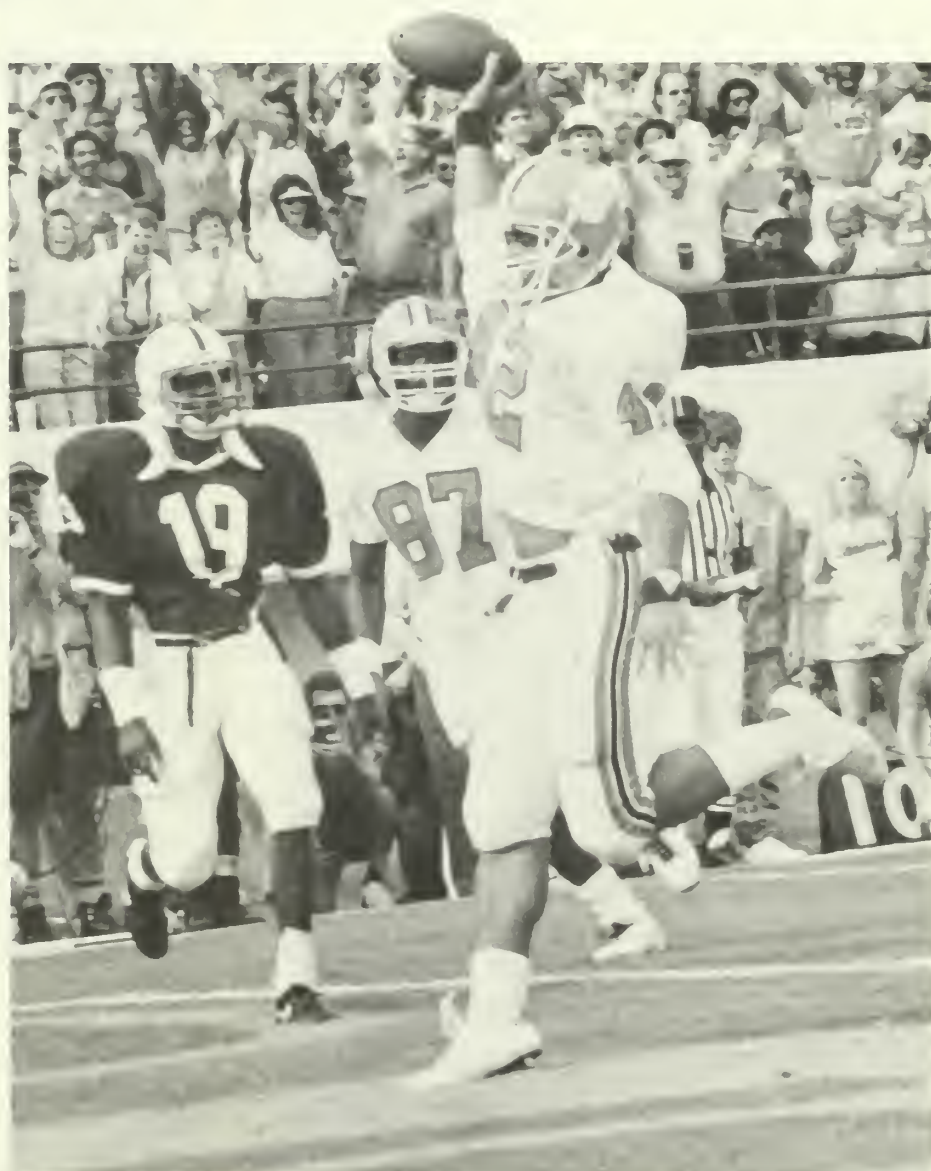

Clemson and Miami are the only schools in the nation to beat both Nebraska and Oklahoma in the decade of the eighties.

Bubba Brown stopped Art Schlichter cold on this play in Clemson's 1978 Gator Bowl win over Ohio State. Brown had 22 tackles in the 17-15 Tiger win.

Steve Durham stopped Pete Holohan at Notre Dame in Clemson's 16-10 win in South Bend in 1979. It was just the third time in 40 years that Notre Dame's seniors were beaten in their final home game.

Tracy Johnson scored three TDs in the 35-10 win over Penn State in the 1988 Florida Citrus Bowl.

Clemson University Commemorative Bowl Pins

Each set is individually numbered Limited to 15,000 sets

Released for the first time in March 1989, this historic set of pins is the first to commemorate Clemson University participation in major collegiate bowl competition, beginning with the 1940 Cotton Bowl played January 1, 1940 in Dallas, Texas.

Each pin displays that year's distinctive Bowl Logo and the helmets of the Tigers and their opponent, with the points scored under each team's helmet. Each pin has a hanging drop piece that proclaims the name and emblem of the Bowl Champion.

With the assistance of Bob Bradley, Clemson Sports Information Director and his staff, the archives at Clemson University were researched for near forgotten authentic artwork from the fifteen bowls the Tigers participated in. As you look at your pin set, notice the helmets in the 1940 Cotton Bowl were brown leather with no face mask, also notice the absence of the now familiar "Tiger Paw." The Tigers first bowl appearance using the "New Plastic Helmets" was the 1949 Gator Bowl. The face mask made its first Clemson Bowl appearance in the 1957 Orange Bowl and the now famous "Tiger Paw" made its bowl debut in the 1977 Gator Bowl. The results of the research are designs for each pin that pull together and preserve the historic past of Clemson Football.

This Commemorative Clemson University Pin Collection is limited to 15,000 sets. Each set is numbered, with the production of the 15,000th set the molds will be destroyed, thus assuring the purchaser that this commemorative pin set is truly a collectors piece that will appreciate in value year after year.

To ensure that pins for future bowls will be available, Sports Mint, Inc. will produce a commemorative pin for all future bowls the Clemson Tiger Football Team participates in. The pin will be available to set owners 60 days after the completion of the bowl.

THE PROVIDENCE HEART INSTITUTE IS BUILT ON SOMETHING SOLID.

he Providence Heart Institute's new building is one of the finest medical facilities in the country. But to a patient with a life-threatening heart disease, an attractive, efficient building isn't enough. What is important is inside the building—Providence people, with the experience gained in treating thousands of patients.

Providence has more adult cardiovascular experience than any other hospital in South Carolina. For over fifteen years we have been the state's leading referral center for the diagnosis and treatment of heart disease. Physicians and patients have long recognized our reputation for professional skills and compassionate care.

We're excited about our new building, equipped for state-of-the-art testing and treatment. But that building isn't the reason people come to the Providence Heart Institute. They come for what it's built on.

EXPERIENCE.

Columbia, South Carolina

The Clemson University athletic program is competitive on the national level. In the 1988-89 year Clemson was one of just eight schools in the country to have teams participate in a bowl game (1989 Citrus Bowl), the NCAA basketball tournament (1989 West Regional), and the NCAA baseball tournament (Atlantic Regional). Clemson was one of only three schools to gain at least one win in each postseason event, tied the ACC record for overall conference championships in an academic year and finished sixth in the national All-Sports poll.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of this success by being committed to the student athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four and five-million dollar marks in annual donations. The 1988-89 academic year marks the 25th consecutive year of increased contributions to the IPTAY scholarship fund.

In 1934 Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind. IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Clemson continues to be one of the few schools in the nation to award the maximum number of scholarships allowed by the NCAA for 18 men's and women's varsity sports. Since 1934, IPTAY has provided scholarships for over 5,000 student athletes, trainers, and managers. In recent years an average of 450 student-athletes per year have been recipients of scholarships funded by IPTAY. IPTAY currently has a reserve fund to cover the scholarship costs for the student-athletes presently attending Clemson on athletic scholarships and scholarships committed to incoming freshman.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to assure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics. Future plans include a commitment of IPTAY funds for a new $2.5 million Academic Learning Center.

The Academic Learning Center is a 29,000 square-foot facility. It will house the tutoring and advising program for student-athletes. The building will contain various sized study and tutoring rooms to be used for individual study as well as for small group instruction. Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium will also be contained in the facility. IPTAY is proud to be a part of the commitment on behalf of the athletic department administration to pursue academic success for all student-athletes.

The generous support of over 20,000 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $32 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the new outdoor track, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide funding for the Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY budgets financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Athletic Academic Endowment Scholarship was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts which are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues. The Athletic Academic Endowment Scholarship is presently the largest scholarship endowment at Clemson.

The tremendous success of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup which allows members to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County Chairman, and every county is allotted one IPTAY representative for every 35 members.

IPTAY donors are kept up-to-date with Clemson athletics through the Orange and White. This is an official IPTAY publication and distributed exclusively to IPTAY donors in appreciation of their support.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Allison Dalton is the Executive Secretary of IPTAY.

Band Program

by Julie Steele

There are few things more exciting to Clemson football fans than the first play of the season.

The first play, that is, of "Tiger Rag", the sound that officially begins football season in Tigertown.

The moment the first orange-clad fan walks through the gates of Death Valley, the tension begins to mount. Weeks of anticipation result in a feverish crowd of balloon-toting, tiger paw-painted Clemson followers. A sense of excitement evades the arena as the Tiger Band marches onto the field for the pregame show and a Saturday afternoon at Death Valley officially begins.

The pregame show will open as the fans relive the glory of the National Championship with the opening "Sock It To 'Em" followed by the Orange Bowl March. The invocation will be offered by Father Steve Bossi from St. Andrews Catholic Church and the Chaplain for the Clemson Catholic Students Association.

The band continues the pregame show by offering its rendition of "America the Beautiful," directed by Richard E. Goodstein and accompanied by the Clemson University Choir. "The Star-Spangled Banner" will be played next, directed by Dr. Bruce Cook, while an ensemble from Pershing Rifles Company C-4 presents the colors. Finally, both chorus and band will lead the thousands of fans in the Clemson University Alma Mater. By this time, the band will move toward the endzone. The team will have gathered at the top of the hill, every fan will be on their feet and the cannon will sound, as the band breaks into "Tiger Rag" and the Tigers stream into the valley.

Today's halftime show will feature songs based on the theme "Saturday Afternoon at the Opera." The opener, "Night on Bald Mountain," is written by Modeste Moussorgsky and arranged by Jay Bocook. Edward Madden's arrangement "Excerpts from Pagliac-ci" will be next. "Highlights from the Phantom of the Opera" which is composed by Andrew Lloyd Weber and arranged by Corky Fabrizio will follow. Finally, the long-awaited moment will arrive, as Greenville native Nick Peck steps up to the microphone to say those magic words, "The Song That Shakes the Southland — TIGER RAG!"

Next to the excitement of a Tiger touchdown, nothing can bring Clemson loyal to their feet and make them clap their hands the way the Tiger Band can. It is hard to imagine Clemson football without the Tiger Band. The enthusiasm of the 280-plus member band is contagious. The students comprising the Tiger Band come from all academic backgrounds. Unlike many universities its size, Clemson does not offer a music major. However, this does not effect the quality of the band, says Dr. Bruce E. Cook, Director of University Bands. "The key to the esprit de corps — the spirit and enthusiasm they show at the games — is that we have a group of students that want to be in the band. They are not forced to participate."

The first week of practice was hectic for the band members. Incoming freshmen and transfer students who expressed an interest in becoming part of the Tiger Band family were asked to report Sunday, August 20 for auditions. Upperclass band members reported the following morning and a week of grueling practice began.

"During the first week of practice, we met at night and practiced in the middle of the afternoon. We met anytime they were not involved in a registration or class activity," says Dr. Cook. A picnic on Saturday, August 26, gave the band members a chance to wind down before settling into the regular rehearsal schedule which includes practices on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays.

Dr. Richard E. Goodstein enters his eighth year as director of the Tiger Band. Renowned for his direction, Dr. Goodstein has spent the past three summers directing the Walt Disney World All-American Marching Band in Orlando, FL.

why evergreen trees along the upper Blue Ridge are dying.*

All along the Appalachian ridge, from Maine to Georgia, spruce and fir trees are dying. And in the Piedmont of South Carolina, pine trees are showing a 25 percent reduction in growth.

Scientists suspect the reason may be a combination of acid rain and ground level ozone pollution, which can weaken the trees and make them more vulnerable to drought, disease and insects.

But how great is the potential threat to trees in the Southeast? Hard to say, because the effects of pollution are tough to measure in the uncontrolled natural environment.

That's why Reardon built 24 growth chambers in the middle of the Clemson Forest. The giant plastic bubbles make his research site look like the set of a Steven Spielberg movie.

Inside each chamber, Reardon can control the acidity of the rainfall and the purity of the air.

He and his colleagues — fellow forestry researchers at Clemson and four other universities — are documenting pollution's effects on commercially important tree species in the Southeast.

What he learns could save millions in damage to South Carolina's biggest cash crop — trees.

Rick Stockstill

By Julie Steele

It can truly be said that coaching is in Rick Stockstill's blood.

The newest member of Clemson's coaching staff is a third generation coach following a tradition that was started over 40 years ago. Stockstill's grandfather, a high school coach in Ohio, and his father, who has coached in three states, including a stint at Georgetown College in Kentucky, have had a significant impact on Clemson's new quarterback coach.

Growing up in a coaching family, Stockstill said from an early age, his ambition was to be a high school coach. However, this changed after he entered Florida State University. "I went to college with the desire to be a high school coach and left hoping to be a college coach," he said. "By my junior year, after being around the college coaches and seeing the different opportunities you have coaching on the college level, it seemed more appealing for me to pursue that direction in coaching."

Stockstill's knowledge of the game was planted at Fernandina High School in Florida, where he lettered four years in basketball, baseball and football. But football proved to be his forte. "I began playing organized tackle football in the third grade, and continued to play in junior high, high school and at Florida State," he explains.

Even as he was playing little league football, it was obvious that Stockstill had a special talent and, by the time he was in the fifth grade, he found himself in the quarterback slot — a position he continued to excel in throughout his career.

At Florida State, Stockstill earned three letters as a Seminole gridder, made three bowl appearances and was selected to play in two senior all-star games. Stockstill fondly recalls victories over such power-house opponents as Nebraska, Ohio State, Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, and he helped FSU to a pair of Top 10 final AP rankings.

Yet it was the friendships that he developed with his teammates that Stockstill considers the high point of his college career. "When you play with guys four and five years, you develop strong ties — so strong that 10 years later, you are still best friends."

In 1982, after graduating from Florida State with a B.S. in physical education, Stockstill accepted the position of offensive coordinator and quarterback coach at Bethune-Cookman College. Two years later, he was appointed assistant head coach and wide receiver coach at The University of Central Florida, where his 1987 team reached the semifinals of the Division II NCAA playoffs.

Making the transition from Central Florida to the larger Clemson program was not difficult, says Stockstill. "We used the same methods of coaching at Central Florida that we use here. I've always believed that if you can coach, you can coach — no matter what level you are on. If you can coach in high school, you can coach in college. If you can coach in college, you can coach in the pros. The biggest difference is the level of competition."

After spending four years in Orlando, adjusting to the slower pace of life in Clemson was the more interesting transition for Stockstill. "In Orlando you can do something different every day and night of the week year-round," he said. "Here it's different, because things aren't as hectic. I like Clemson. I was raised in a small town. It's my kind of town."

Stockstill is no stranger to his current small town. His brother, Jeff, played for the Tigers from 1979-1982 and Stockstill journeyed from Florida to witness two Death Valley matches Jeff's senior year (1982). He has also known Clemson running back coach Chuck Reedy since his high school days when Reedy was the head football coach at another high school in the same Florida conference.

Getting to know Clemson and his players will be an easy task for Stockstill since one of his responsibilities is acting as supervisor of the athletic dormitory. "Acting as dorm supervisor gives me the opportunity to have more contact with the players than anyone else on the staff," he said. "I have a chance to get to know the person underneath the pads."

The new Tiger quarterback coach has high expectations for his players this year. "I expect to win the ACC title," Stockstill said. "I also expect the guys that I coach to believe they can win the conference."

"I realize that we are a young team and that no one has ever won the conference four years in a row, but I believe that is an attainable goal."

Additionally, Stockstill hopes to see his players performing in a January first bowl game. "I want to see the quarterbacks play better than they are capable of playing," he says. "The players have to believe they have no limitations, and must play better than people think they can. If they do, then we will be able to accomplish our goal of winning the conference and going to a major bowl."

Although his players may lack experience, Stockstill has confidence in the Clemson quarterback lineup, and he is looking forward to an exciting season. "I am confident that any of the three top quarterbacks (Chris Morocco, DeChane Cameron and Michael Carr) can win and do a great job for Clemson," he said.

For Stockstill, perhaps the most exciting moment of the year will take place on September 9, when he returns to the playing field of his alma mater — but on the opposing sideline.

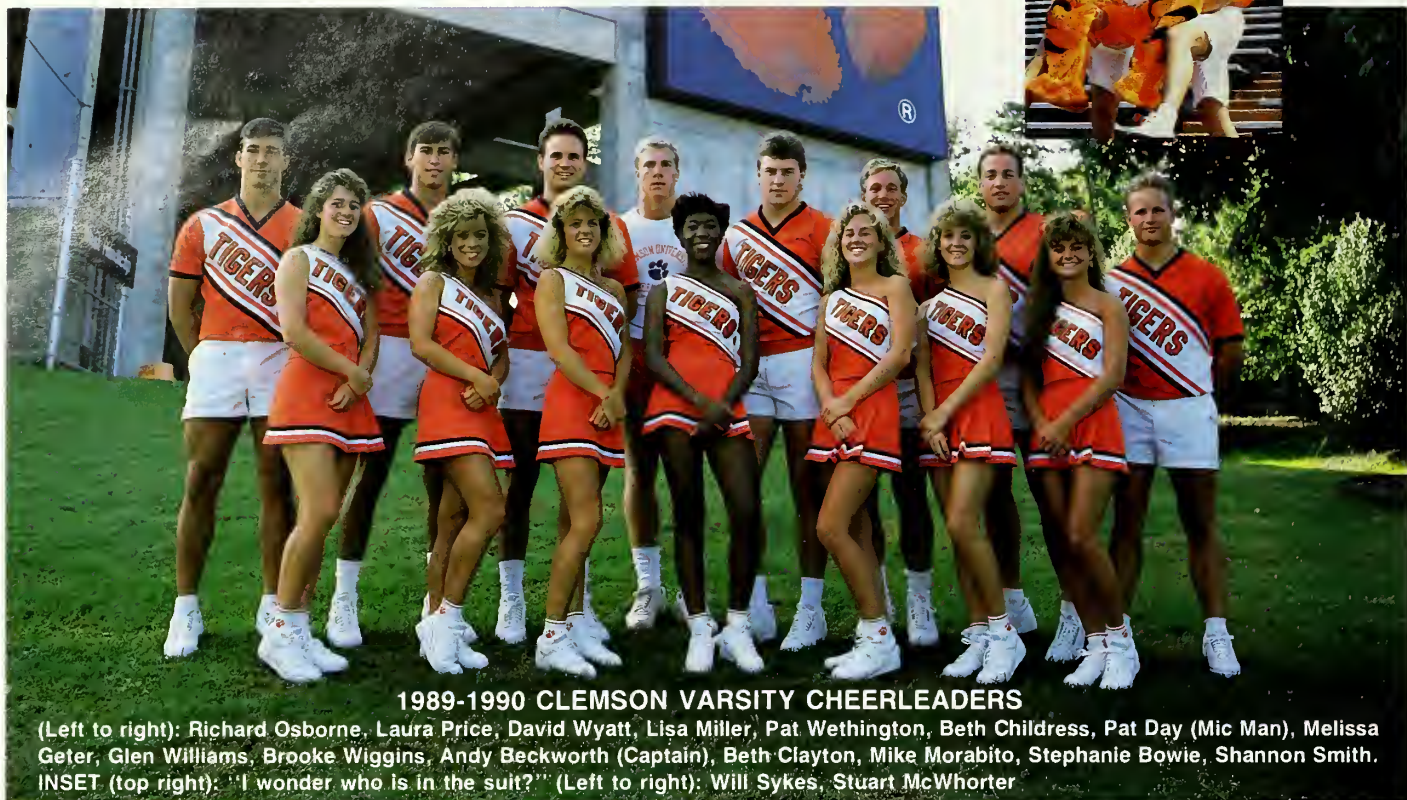

"I always dreamed of walking back into Doak Campbell Stadium, but always as a coach for Florida State," he said. "I never thought I'd be going back as an opponent — but I'm sure looking forward to it."

No matter what sideline he will be patrolling, you can bet his father and grandfather will be proud.

Stockstill quarterbacked Florida State to Top 10 finishes in 1979 and 1980. Next week he will coach against the Seminoles in the stadium that saw many of his victories as a player.

Opportunity can knock at the most unusual times.

Take, for instance, the predicament of Jeff Davis.

Despite being the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' leading tackler in 1985 and '86, and being the team's captain in '87, Davis was waived by the Bucs prior to last season.

"It's hard to say what happened," said Davis, a former ACC MVP who led Clemson to the 1981 national title from his linebacker spot. "I went through some contract disputes. Things just didn't work out."

He tried to latch on with San Diego, but things didn't work out there either.

While his football future was in limbo, however, Davis was given a proposition from the pastor of his church. Davis was asked to take over the youth group at the New Life Christian Center in Tampa.

"I didn't want to at first," Davis said. "I had a lot of insecurities about it, because it was something I had never done before. What I was going to use (as an excuse) was, I would love to start the class but I might be leaving at anytime. I didn't want to start anything I couldn't finish."

"It was funny. My pastor came in and said we understand your football situation. But we still want you to teach the class. When it's time for you to go, you can just go."

So Davis began a youth ministry he refers to as "Say Yes to God."

"Being affiliated with football you always hear them say, 'Say NO to Drugs.' Through my life there were numerous times where I had to say no. And the only reason was by the grace of God that I was able to say no."

And as Davis began working with the youth group, the more satisfying it became.

"I had gone through a lot and the Lord gave me a platform to share with young people."

"I saw a need for kids to have somebody they could spend time with, somebody that believes in them. But most of all, somebody that loves them."

It's not surprising that Davis would develop such a passion for his work with the young. That's just his way.

He shared that same passion on the football field, where he devastated opposing ball carriers, despite being tabbed "too little" by some.

"I love football," he said. "I didn't play it for a coach. I didn't play it just to be playing it. I played it because I loved it. In turn, when you love something, you'll do anything for it, you'll pay the price. And I paid the price for the game. I worked hard because I wanted to be the best I could be."

He might have been considered small for a linebacker in professional football, standing just 6-feet tall. But at Clemson, Davis played like a giant.

Davis led the Tigers in all tackling categories in 1980 and '81 en route to being just the third defensive player in Atlantic Coast Conference history to be named the league's MVP.

And Davis, who possessed tremendous strength, continued to demonstrate his prowess in the NFL. Despite being named a consensus first-team All-American at Clemson, where he capped off his career by registering 14 tackles and being named the game's defensive MVP against Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, Davis had to wait until the fifth round before the Bucs selected him the 1982 draft.

But he quickly converted the non-believers. "You can measure height and weight," Davis said. "But you can't measure heart. You just can't put those things on a scale."

By the 1985 season, Davis started every game for the Bucs and made 132 tackles. He registered 136 stops the following year. And despite being slowed by injury in 1987, he contributed 70 tackles.

But when he was released from the L.A. Raiders, his final stop in the NFL, Davis showed no remorse.

"A coach can't say I was disrespectful," Davis said. "A coach can't say I was a problem player."

Davis was Defensive MVP of the Orange Bowl and captain of Clemson's national championship team.

I was a captain. I can feel good about that. I can walk away from football because I don't have any regrets. I walked away from football because I was prepared for life."

Davis said that preparation began with his early home life, where he lived with his mother, grandmother, and three sisters.

"The one ingredient we had was love. It stemmed from my grandmother, who was a strong believer in Christ. Through all the hard times I went through, I always came back to that one thing I was taught. And that was to love and believe in Jesus Christ. That was the thing that brought me all through my career."

And it is exactly that discipline and love that Davis was taught at home that he wishes to share with kids, many of whom, Davis says, aren't as fortunate as he was.

"My thing is the family is so torn up. There are so many women who are heads of homes now. There's no structure."

"They're confused. They're confused with what love really is because so many people are trying to love them with material things. Other people are trying to love them with drugs. Some have no foundation."

And along with his work with the youth group, Davis is raising his own family with his wife, Joni, and three daughters, Jenee (4), Jourdan (3) and Judea (5 mos.)

Davis, who returned to Clemson to graduate in 1984 with a degree in Industrial Education, is also part owner of a travel agency, and is considering other business opportunities as well.

He once thought he might be interested in returning to Clemson to coach some day. But that was before his involvement with the youth group at his church.

Then again, who knows what might lay ahead. "People asked me what happened," Davis said of the questions he received after his sudden departure from football. "And I just say 'The Lord just had something else for me.'"

Davis graduated in 1984 and started for the Tampa Bay Bucs. He is now involved with a church youth group, among other activities.

The Last Word

By Bob Bradley

George Bennett, you really know how to put a fly in the ointment!!!

We had planned to write as our first "Last Word" for 1989 the fact that there is a Furman man, Bobby Robinson, who serves as athletic director at Clemson, and you, a Clemson man, heading up the athletic department at Furman. What a natural!!!

Furman is Clemson's oldest football rival. The Tigers engaged the Paladins (although they weren't Paladins then) in a game of football October 28, 1896, two weeks before Clemson played South Carolina.

But what happens?

An announcement was made in early August that you and your wife Nancy were going back to Nashville where you were going to be executive vice president for development at the big Baptist Hospital there.

To me, there's only one advantage to you all going back to Nashville — we'll probably see more of you now than when you were in Greenville, like it was when you were in Nashville before. We don't want to put any undue pressure on you, but you know how much we always enjoyed coming over there every October to the Country Music Awards. I remember one time no matter how hard you tried, no tickets were available. But in this new influential position, there should be no trouble getting tickets.

You surprised us when you left Clemson as IPTAY executive secretary for Vanderbilt's Commodore Club. Then, there were a few eyebrows raised when you left Vandy to come to Furman three years ago as its athletic director.

But that really wasn't all that hard to figure out.

Your daughter Bonnie was on the Clemson staff, your mama lived in Columbia and Nancy's mother and father lived in Blowing Rock. Greenville would put you right in the middle of all your family.

And now you're going back to Nashville.

Of course, that shouldn't come as all that much of a bombshell. Nancy and you have always been known as "involvers" and both of you accept a challenge as eager as most people look forward to payday.

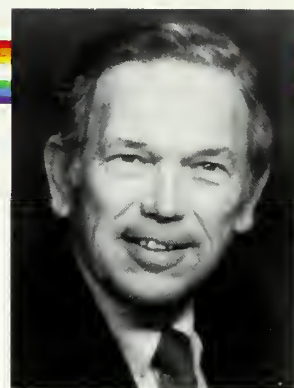

Getting in the thick of things began early in Bennett's high school days in Columbia and continued to surface after his enrollment at Clemson. He held offices in three different classes, including president of the freshman class, he was also president of Blue Key and the Central Dance Association, a member of the Pershing Rifles, a distinguished military student, and was head cheerleader his senior year in 1954-55.

It was this last honor that first got the attention of the Bradley household.

Having gotten married in March, 1954, my child bride, Louise, and I moved to Clemson in order for me to become alumni secretary August 1st.

Football season rolled around and I was going to assist in the press box while Louise, to my knowledge going to her first collegiate football game, would sit in the stands. We gave Presbyterian its usual first day beating and we were interested in what thoughts Louise would have about her initial honest-to-goodness Clemson game. We had cut our honeymoon short by two days in March in order to get back to the Clemson Spring Game.

When questioned about the game, Louise admitted that she hadn't watched the game too much, but was intrigued by the cheering of students.

"That head cheerleader really knows how to get everything out of those students," she replied. "I think he had every student standing and yelling the entire game."

That head cheerleader happened to be George Bennett and she continued to talk about George every home game for the rest of the season. It appeared to me that she had a first-class crush on George from just watching him perform.

He married his wife, Nancy and they had two children. George graduated in 1955, went into service for a couple of years and then joined Exxon. However, in 1967 his collegiate ties to Clemson were too much and he returned to the campus as alumni field representative. In the seventies he served as Executive Secretary of IPTAY and has a lot to do with the success of that organization.

Even before the Bennetts moved back to the campus, their friendship with the Bradleys had already been renewed. By the time they moved to Nashville the first time (1979), the Bennett-Bradley ties were about as tight as a wound-up clock spring.

In the past three years, we thought it unique that with the schools so close, a Furman man was at Clemson and a Clemson man at Furman. We often joked that maybe one day Dr. Max Lennon of Clemson would meet Dr. John Johns of Furman somewhere near Liberty and that they would trade athletic directors. Similar to ritual that took place years ago when the Clemson and South Carolina presidents used to meet at mid-field at halftime and one president would trade the governor, whom he had had the first half, for the two United States senators, for the second half.

But that far-fetched idea went the way of the Edsel, and Bobby Robinson, we apologize to you for having to leave you out of this story for the most part. But, those Baptists in Nashville just jerked the rug out from under the Baptists in Greenville, and you got caught in the middle as far as the "Last Word" goes.

We wish Nancy and George the very best as they return to a legion of friends in Nashville who have been waiting three years for them to come back.

And, George, check real close with some of your more influential friends. Maybe one of them has two tickets for the Country Music Awards in October. The reason I need two tickets is that Louise wants to come. She still has a crush on you.

George Bennett (front row, far right) was head Clemson cheerleader in 1954, then became Furman Athletic Director. He will be inducted into the Clemson Hall-of-Fame on October 28.
